Acknowledgments

We are grateful to the many people who have provided us with information and insights, as well as practical kinds of support services, as we have sought to gather and analyze materials dealing with the five criminal cases that make up the core of this book. Our largest debt is to the array of authors before us who have described and interpreted the events. We have drawn on what they have written and have tried to reconcile and revise their ideas in terms of our own understanding of what took place. The sources we relied on are listed in the For Further Reading pages at the end of each case discussion. We want to acknowledge especially that it was in the front matter in Allen Weinstein's Perjury that we first came across the E. L. Doctorow quotation with which we conclude the Introduction.

At the University of California, Irvine, Judy Omiya and Teri Denman, both superb departmental administrative assistants, provided invaluable help with a wide variety of chores. Carol Wyatt, as always, efficiently and intelligently handled the word processing, assisted by Dianne Christianson and Mirella Marinelli. Also contributing mightily to our work was Julia Gelfand, an indefatigable and highly knowledgeable librarian, and Patricia Staump, Pam LaZarr, and Mimi Upton, who handled interlibrary loan requests. Thanks are also due Joseph Wells, Dennis and Lori Suzucki, Steve Reynard, Marco Turk, Don Menaguale, Brian Newberg, John Cahill, and Mary Josephine Dodge.

Thanks as well to Natasha Sankovitch for her marvelous research assistance and friendship, to Marcia Lehr, Pegeen Bassett, and others at the Northwestern University School of Law Library for their inspired assistance. Thanks also to David Van Zandt, dean of the Northwestern Law School, and to the Law School for summer research support in 1996 and 1997. The Northwestern Library was able to supply transcripts of both the Hiss and the Hauptmann trials as well as material concerning Leopold and Loeb. Fred E.

Inbau, Robert P. Burns, Kathryn Watterson, and Susan Hahn stand out among the many people who provided assistance, listened patiently, and read parts of the manuscript. Gratitude also goes to the staff at the National Archives on Varick Street for their patience, and all the librarians, researchers, and friends for their time and thoughtful comments, which were greatly appreciated.

It has been a delight to work with the group at Northeastern University Press. Bill Frohlich, the Press director, first suggested the topic, brought us together as co-authors, and has been enormously supportive of our work as it developed. Tara Mantel, like Bill, read early drafts of chapters and made many valuable suggestions. We also want to express our appreciation for the skilled copy editing by Carol Beckwith and the fine indexing by Laura Moss Gottlieb, for Ann Twombly's work as production director, and for Jill Bahcall's handling of the marketing of our book.

We want to express our deepest gratitude to all of these people and organizations for their help and to make it known that whatever deficiencies exist in this work are the result of our own shortcomings.
